SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

To the School Board of Francestown:

Herewith is submitted my third annual report on the condition of your schools.

Teachers and Schools

The year opened this September with a change of teachers in the grammar school in the village, Miss St. John resigning her position at the end of the school year last June, her position being taken by Miss Louise Barrett, a teacher of experience, who is carrying on the work in a very satisfactory manner. The other teachers remain the same.

It was thought best by the Board to open again the school in district No. 1, and Miss Vera Locke was secured to fill the position.

It oftentimes becomes a problem of considerable importance whether it is the wisest plan to keep open some particular school, or whether it would be best in the end to transport the pupils to some central school where their educational opportunities would be greater. The single room rural school has a distinct part to play in the educational system of New Hampshire, and its importance cannot be minimized. Where conditions warrant it, it can be made a strong factor in rural development. If there are around 15 pupils who can get to the school easily, and there is available a school house wholesome and attractive, and an opportunity for the teacher to live comfortably and contentedly there is no question, I think, but that such a school should be maintained. If the number of children served by the school drops below twelve it becomes a question whether it is not advisable to transport them to a larger school. No school, in my opinion, should be maintained where the number of pupils is less than six or eight, if they can be transported comfortably to another school. To maintain such a school is a waste of money and unfair to the child. There is nothing in such a school to inspire a teacher to her best efforts, nor is there any stimulus to the ambition of pupils. Such a school is bound to be lifeless.

On account of lack of funds, and also because of lack of pupils the Academy was discontinued this year. To those who had looked forward to taking the Junior High course this was a disappointment. The school was approved by the state department to do one years work in High school, and the work had been commenced by the inspector. To some it may seem that the work of the Junior High ought to be continued in the present eighth grade. Some parts of it might be, but with three other grades in the room it is quite difficult to give sufficient time to the Junior High subjects, and, in addition to this, it is oftentimes difficult to secure teachers who can handle the subjects. Especially is this true with the present salary schedule. Where these conditions prevail the state is developing what is called the Junior school which it might be well to consider carefully for another year.

The Work In School

There are certain things fundamental in the work of any school, and unless these things are done efficiently the value of the school to pupils and community is, in a large degree, lessened. The fundamental operations in Arithmetic should become automatic. Children should be trained to add, subtract, multiply and divide with accuracy and rapidity; they should be able to operate with fractions and decimals in the same manner; they should be perfectly familiar with the principles of percentage, and a quick and accurate method of solving interest, together with some of the common rules of measurements.

In language, before leaving the elementary grades, a child should have acquired the ability to express himself, both orally and in writing, in a clear, natural manner, and correct so far as the common usages of grammar go.

He should be able to spell correctly all the familiar words in common use, and to do this without hesitation or uncertainty. He should acquire an easy, legible style of handwriting. All will agree, I think, that the schools should do these things well, and upon them we are placing the emphasis this year.

Oral drills in arithmetic are a daily exercise in order that the combinations and tables may become a part of the mental makeup of the child, and many of the pupils are becoming proficient in this. I venture to say that many of them could win out in competition with their parents.

In language we are striving for the ability to write a good, friendly or business letter, and one or two paragraphs in which the child expresses his own thoughts correctly.

In spelling we have a list of 1000 of the most common words in every day use. The spelling and use of these words must be learned perfectly by every child, so far as this is possible, who completes the grades. To this list may be added other words with which every one comes in contact.

These are the things we are emphasizing this year. Of course there are other necessary phases of school work that are receiving due attention, and which are essential to the proper development of the child. We ask the co-operation of all parents in reaching the standards here indicated.

Health Work

The annual medical examination of the children was held last spring, and notices of defects found sent to the parents by the physician. The following is the result of the examination as reported by Dr. Stevens.

Number of pupils examined, 53

Number of defects found:

Defective vision, 14
 Defective hearing, 2
 Defective teeth, 36
 Enlarged tonsils, 26
 Adenoids, 20
 Defective breathing, 2
 Enlarged glands, 1

Eleven cases were reported where treatment had been secured since the last examination.

This does not show that any very large percentage of the defects received proper attention, or that any special attention was paid to the notices sent by the physician. At this point our health work usually breaks down. The trouble is discovered but the remedy is not applied. It is of no particular value to discover a weakness if steps are not taken to remedy it. Of great practical value at this point would be a nurse, working under the direction of the school board, who could follow up these cases, advise with parents as to what was best to do, and aid in all cases where children were undeveloped or ailing. In general she would have as her particular job attention to the physical welfare of every child in school. A plan has been devised, and has been worked out successfully in other places, whereby this may be accomplished. In brief it is the employment by a supervisory union of a competent nurse, who will give her entire time to the work, each district paying a proportionate part of the expense, and receiving a corresponding amount of the nurse's time. At the school meeting this year, I understand, the district will have the opportunity of considering this question, and I trust it will receive careful attention.

Attendance

The statistical table appended shows the record of attendance for the year ending in June, 1921. This is a much better record than that of the previous year. The percent of attendance was raised 8.6, and the number of tardiness dropped 65. For the first 18 weeks of the current year the record is equally good. May we have the co-operation of all in keeping up this record.

It may be of interest to note that Francestown spent for the year 1920-21 for local public education $10.08 per $1000 of the equalized valuation. This is 80th among the districts of the state. It will receive from the equalization fund of the state for the current year about $1624. This same amount will be distributed next year so it will be easy for the district to determine how much in addition to the $5 tax on the equalized valuation must be raised for the school the coming year.

To all who have shown an interest in the work of the school, and have co-operated in making it successful permit me to express my appreciation.

Respectfully submitted,

L. E. PRIOR
